DEBATING TEAM AT WORK

Busily Preparing for Big Inter-Collegiate Event in April.

The University Debating Team has at last been selected and have now gotten down to hard work, preparing itself for the coming debate with Central for the inter-collegiate championship of the state.

Owing to a misunderstanding with Central's representatives on the Executive Committee of the Debating Association, there has been considerable delay, working greatly to our disadvantage, but from the energetic manner in which the boys are getting into harness, we have great hopes of their bringing the championship back where it rightly belongs.

Our debaters are W. C. Shultz, a Senior education student from Ohio county, J. F. Bruner, also a Senior in education, from Daviess county, and J. O. Gill, a Junior law student from Marion Crittenden county. None of the men have been members of the Inter-collegiate team before, but all are experienced public speakers, Mr. Shultz and Mr. Gill both having won previous oratorical and declamatory contests and Mr. Bruner being his class orator with quite an enviable record in his Literary Society. All three are industrious, capable students and we need feel no hesitation in trusting the banner of the University in their hands. They are being coached by Professor J. T. Noe, one of the ablest and best equipped men in the state for such a task.

The debate is to be held here in the latter part of April. The subject is, "Resolved, That the Amendment to the Constitution of the United States proposed by the Sixty-first Congress and granting to the Federal Government the power to lay and collect an income tax according to the principle of uniformity, should be ratified by the states."

State, having the choice of sides, took the negative, and we confidently expect a clear demonstration or the inadvisability of the adoption of the amendment, "when Greek meets Greek" in the University chapel next month.—The Idea. University of Kentucky.

John Parr of Fredonia, one of the old land marks of that section was here last week as jolly as ever.

The Road Problem.

The local papers throughout the state are discussing the good road proposition from every angle imaginable. The road problem is being handled as successfully as it will ever be under the present system in Kentucky, and until it is entirely divorced from the county and fiscal court, except as to the furnishing of the funds necessary for the roads, there can be no improvement in the road working. The roads of a county ought to constitute a separate and distinct department of the local government, presided over by a single officer who has no other official duties. A county judge is not in a position officially to look after the roads as they should be. He can not leave his office to go about over the county investigating complaints. He appoints the best men it is possible to get to accept the position of overseers of roads, but it is impossible for him to ascertain by personal observation as to their success as such officials. A county supervisor of public highways, with the right man in the place, it appears, would be an improvement over the present system, as he could be and should be required to give the roads his individual attention, and then be held responsible for their proper maintenance.—Boone County Recorder.

SHADY GROVE MILLINERY

We have now all of our goods in. Latest fashions in Hats. Novelties from the best markets.

Mrs. B. C. Birchfield,
Shady Grove, Kentucky.

He was eighty-five years old, the last of his generation of the family so distinguished in the annals of the state.

Maj. Shelby was proceeded to the grave many years by his wife, who was Miss Mary Steele, of Chicago. He is survived by eleven children—Mrs. Godfrey Darbshire, lately of England; Mrs. Shelby Sanders, of Louisiana; Mrs. P. M. McRoberts, of Stanford; Mrs. Will Lawmill, of Danville; Mrs. Kingsland Fisher, of St. Louis; Alfred Shelby, of Oklahoma, and Isaac Shelby, Jr., George Shelby and Misses Mary, Florence and Tevis Shelby, of this county.

In early life Maj. Shelby lived in Fayette county with his father and later went to Chicago, where he married. He enlisted in the Confederate army and rapidly rose in rank through distinguished service. For the past decade or so he had lived the quiet life of a country gentleman on part of Gov. Shelby's original homestead, "Traveler's Rest."

Somebody Head Him.

Herbert G. Whitney of Water Valley, Miss., has been keeping the wires hot since Saturday March 25th at 1:08 P. M. when the stork "lit" at his house with Miss Virginia Louise Whitney a beautiful little lady of eight pounds weight. He notified all his friends from President Markham, of the I. C. R. R. down, and is being congratulated on all sides. He thinks he is entitled to a raise in salary and a general promotion and we agree with him and think he will get it.

Woman of Seventy

Goes To College.

Spokane, Wash., Mar. 28.—Mrs. W. C. Price, seventy years of age, widow of a veteran of the Civil War, will be graduated with a class of young men and women in a local commercial college this spring, her diploma showing she is a competent stenographer and typist. She began her studies last September, attending school five days a week, and up to today she has been absent from only one session.

At the home of her son, Wray R. Price, 2018 Cleveland avenue, Mrs. Price said she will take up a homestead in Oregon after graduating and expects to open an office in a neighboring town, making a specialty of stenographic work and collecting to support her while acquiring 160 acres of land. Mrs. Price has been the second woman to register in Spokane when the ballot was given to the women of Washington. She is opposed to the tactics employed by the militant element in England and elsewhere, believing the method is wrong.

BACK TAXES PAID AS

A MORAL OBLIGATION

Heirs Of Rich Boston Man Make Good With City Treasury.

Boston, March 25.—Purely as a moral obligation and not on account of any legal liability, back taxes on the estate of the late Quincy A. Shaw, amounting to $492,000, on property overlooked by the assessors in 1908 and 1909 have been paid into the city treasury, according to a statement issued by the finance committee. The committee finds that the assessors were at fault in not exhausting all means of obtaining information regarding this taxable property, and that the city was unable to enforce collection in full.

The beneficiaries under the will of Mr. Shaw were asked to pay the amount as a moral obligation and they have not only done so in the case of the city of Boston, but have also paid to the city of Beverly, where Mr. Shaw had a summer residence, $70,000 in additional taxes, Shaw was Boston's heaviest individual taxpayer.

John C. Green of Salem, one of Livingstons most enterprising farmers was here last week.

MARION MAN

FOR GOVERNOR.

E. T. Franks Takes The Lead In Race For Nomination.

Owensboro, Ky., March 27.—E. T. Franks, of Owensboro, one of the best known and most popular among prominent Republicans of Kentucky is first in the field as a candidate for gubernatorial nomination of his party.

He came to Louisville yesterday and made his announcement late last night. Mr. Franks has been regarded as a probable candidate since the pot began to boil. His decision to offer himself followed the receipt of hundreds of letters from every section of the state urging him to take the step. Not a Congressional district was unrepresented in these communications, and the sentiment expressed was so enthusiastic that resistance seemed impossible.

Mr. Franks realizes that he will have probably strong rivalry for the nomination, and, in the event of success, a strenuous campaign against the Democratic choice, but he is ready for the contest, and his ability as a campaigner is well known.

Few men in the state are readier or more forceful on the stump. His following in Western Kentucky is powerful and loyal, and he enjoys the confidence and admiration of Republicans in general.

Ed Franks has many admirers and loyal friends in this county who would be proud to see him in the Governor's chair.—EDITOR.

Kentucky in Doubt Politically.

The 1910 census reveals a very significant fact concerning the political complexion of Kentucky. During the last ten years, the population of the state has increased 142,692. Fifty-one counties that gave Republican majorities in both 1907 and 1908, gained 127,204 while the sixty-eight Democratic counties gained only 15,488. Thirty-five Democratic counties lost in population while only eight Republican counties showed a decrease. The Republican counties have 24,554 greater total population than the Democratic counties. These figures indicate that Kentucky is in a doubtful state.—Warsaw Leader.

THE CLOD HOPPER AND THE BALD-HEADED MAN

A STIRRING TALE OF LOVE AND BUSINESS.

Written for the Record-Press by ROBERT C. HAYNES, Author of "This Funny World," "Dark Days and Bright," Etc.

I.

Joe Introduced.

A man once there was who of "hopping the clods"
Grew tired and became then a welder of hods.
Joseph Turk was his name and there scarcely could be
An all-around workman found better than he.

"I'm tired of the farm and of farming," said Turk;
"I prefer a new job and a new kind of work.
Almost any profession, I think, at all odds,
Would suit me much better than hopping the clods.

"I'm tired of the shovel, the rake and the hoe;
Of the ax and the pitchfork, the spade and the froe;
Of sowing and reaping; of steering the plow;
Of driving the mules and of milking the cow."

So Joe left the farm, for the city he died,
And, joining a union, for work he applied.
"Could we give you a job? Yes, I think, Turk, we can:
For, to 'carry the hod' we are needing a man."

"That suits me exactly, and to it I'll stick!
To carry up ladders the mortar and brick,
When compar'd to clod-hopping, is playing," said Turk;
"For the man at the top, after all, does the work."

So the bargain was finish'd, and Joe went to work;
While the man at the top shouted, "Give us brick, Turk!"
"Ah! this is much better than turning the sod,"
Murmur'd Joe, greatly pleased, as he shoulder'd his hod.

II.

Joe Falls In Love.

Now Joe loved a maid—sweet, bright-eyed Imogene—
And an expert was she on the writing machine.
And so day after day—as such was the plan—
She was dictated to by a bald-headed man.

When the days work was over, however, and she
From the bald-headed man and dictation was free.
She thought it so nice—and perhaps it was so!
To sit with and talk to and listen to Joe.

And Joe, when the man at the top ceased to work,
And cried, "Time is up! not another brick, Turk?"
Thought it was just splendid—and so 'twas, I ween!
To sit and converse with his sweet Imogene.

And so the time pass'd, and Miss Imogene Moss—
Still dictated to by her bald-headed boss—
At eight and at five, and the hours between,
Was pounding away on the writing machine.

And Joe, far remov'd from the turning of sod,
Continued his job—that of weilding the hod—
From morning till ev'ning, with scarcely a stop,
He carried the bricks to the man at the top.

And the bald-headed man—pretty Imogene's boss—
Mused, figuring over his profit and loss,
"What scoundrelly fellow will dare come between My bright-eyed expert and her writing machine?"

III.

The Bald Headed Man Forestalls Trouble.

The lights were turned on in the parlor when Joe,
One evening, walked out toward Middleton Row.
He had laid down his hod, for not once did he shirk,
Till the man at the top shouted, "Lay it down, Turk!"

Imogene in the parlor sat waiting for Joe—
Impatiently waiting—why was he so slow?
While across in the store of her boss could be seen
The silent and grim-visaged writing machine.

Down the street walked Joe proudly and briskly, his mind
At peace with himself and the rest of mankind,
When a voice came in greeting: "Say Joe," it began,
"To what point are you steering?" 'Twas the bald-headed man.

"I am late, must get on, sir, as fast as I can;
I've no time to converse with a bald-headed man,"
Answered Joe, while the distance was less'ning between Himself and the home of his dear Imogene.

"The impudent clod-hopping scamp," mused the boss.
"If the rascal succeeds it will be to my loss;
I must therefore break up this affair, if I can—
And will do it, else I'm not a bald-headed man!"

"There's something a-brewing—a confab between My boss and my Joe!" laughed the fair Imogene;
"A social confab—will it be to my loss?"
"Twixt the clod-hopping Joe and the debt-hopping boss."

To Be Continued.

"I WANT MY DREAM AGAIN."

The little boy smiled in his sleep
that night,
As he wandered to Twilight Town;
And his face lit up with a heavenly light.

Through the shadows that drifted
down;
But he woke next morning with tear-stained eye.

In the light of the gray dawn's
gleam,
And out from the stillness we heard
him cry,
"I've lost my dream—my dream."

And he told us then in his childish
way,
Of the wonderful dream he'd known;

He had wandered away from the land
of play
To the distant land of the Grown;
He had won his share in the fame
and fight.

In the struggle and toil of men;
And he sobbed and sighed in the
breaking light,
"I want my dream again."

As the years passed by the little boy grew
Till he came to the land of the Grown;

And the dream of his early youth
came true,
The dream that he thought had flown;

Yet once again he smiled in his sleep—
When those near by might have heard him weep,
"I want my dream—my dream;"

For he dreamed of the yesterday of youth,
And the smile on a mother's face;
A hearth of old-time faith and truth
In the light of an old home place;

He had won his share of the fame
and fight
In the struggle and toil of men—
Yet he sobbed and sighed in the
breaking light,
"I want my dream again!"

the headache any more."

Fox as a Gamester.

Charles James Fox, the English statesman, was even more notorious in the gaming world than he was famous in the world of politics. He had squandered $250,000 before coming of age. He became one of the most profligate gamesters of the vicious days in which he lived. Some of his finest displays in debate were sandwiched between excitement such as would unnerve most men who had no serious business on hand. Walpole has given a glimpse of a typical passage in this extraordinary man's life. He had to take part in the discussion on the thirty-nine articles in parliament on a certain Thursday. He had sat up playing hazard from Tuesday evening until 5 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. An hour before he had recovered $50,000 that he had lost and by dinner time, which was 5 o'clock, ended losing $55,
000. On Thursday he spoke in the debate, went to dinner at past 11 at night; thence to a club, where he drank till 7 the next morning; thence to a gambling house, where he won $30,000, and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon he set out on a journey to Newmarket.

All the grasping and the greed of this world come from not regarding our fellows as our neighbors. One doesn't trample his neighbors. He works with them to a common end. We must do away with the idea of classes. There isn't any justification for class lines in America. They are unjust, unwholesome, unrighteous and un-American. Why should we have class lines here in this country and one man despise another just because he has been lucky enough to make a little more money? A man has some right to be proud of what he makes with his own hands and his own brain, but he hasn't any business putting on airs over what he is merely trying to spend, which the old man accumulated.

Mr. S. M. Jenkins, Editor of the Crittenden Record-Press. Kind Sir, will you allow me to say to my friends in Crittenden County through the columns of your paper; to which I am a subscriber, that I am going to canvass, said county, again this Spring and Summer, in the interest of Cedar Hill Nursery, and Orchard-Company of Winchester, Tennessee. I have made eight delivery's of Nursery Stock in the city of Marion, and there has been no kick coming and I feel assured of the fact that if my friends find out I am coming again, for a Fall Delivery they will save their orders for me. We promise our customers nothing but first-class stock in every respect, and true to name. With best wishes for the Record-Press and all of its readers,
I am yours truly

It is very exciting, so far as the young men are concerned.

In The Land of Flowers, Fruits And Sunshine.

Upland, Cal., Mar. 18, 1911.
Mr. S. M. Jenkins.

Marion, Ky.

My dear friend Jenkins: I wish you would say to your many readers of the Record-Press, that we made the trip in good shape. While we passed hills, mountains, valleys, plains and many, many miles of desert, we rolled into the beautiful little city of Upland Friday morning at 7:45. We were met at the station by our old friend Ramsey and daughter and his father-in-law, Bro. Bennett. We were soon in the parsonage with our feet under the table and what we did for breakfast and other good things, was a plenty.

The parsonage is located on one side of a two acre lot, the whole of the lot except where the house and little barn sits, is covered in orange trees and most of them are hanging full of oranges. We had not been there thirty minutes until William and Eva were under a nice tree with both hands full of the finest oranges you ever put your two eyes on. I can't tell just when they are going to get full, they began yesterday and are still eating. I am sitting here in my room writing, with the door open toward the north; looking up I can see the beautiful oranges, grape fruit and flowers and every thing looks like mid summer, then raising my head I can see the mountain with its lofty head all covered in snow. So you see its summer in the valley and winter on the mountain.

Upland is just forty miles from Los Angeles in the Pomona valley. We will be here two weeks then go to Pasadena and from there to Los Angeles and on as long as we can stay. We are well pleased with this country. Dr. Fowler, of Boston, Mass., is doing the preaching, he is a very fine preacher. We had our first service last night and the large house was well filled. Everything points to a great meeting.

Blessings upon all my friends ever and always your friend and Brother.
W. B. YATES.

Highest Farm Wages Paid
In Forty-five Years.

Higher wages were paid to American farm laborers during 1910 than at any time in the last forty-five years according to statistics just made public by the Department of Agriculture. The average wage for the country was $27.50 per month during 1910, while twenty years ago it was only $18.33. With board, the average wage was $19.21.

In some parts of the country the rate of wages of farm laborers was higher than in others. The highest was in Nevada, where the rate was $54.00 while in Montana and Washington it was $50.00, South Carolina paid the lowest rate, $16.50 per month.—Warsaw Leader.

A Helpless Invalid

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is, it would almost seem, to blame for her own wretchedness. Read what this woman says:

Richmond, Mo. — "When my second daughter was eighteen months old I was pronounced a hopeless invalid by specialists. I had a consultation of doctors and they said I had a severe case of ulceration. I was in bed for ten weeks, had sinking spells, and was pronounced to be in a dangerous condition. My father insisted that we try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought me six bottles. I soon began to improve, and before it had all been taken I was as well and strong as ever. — my friends hardly recognized me so great was the change." — Mrs. Woodson Branstetter, Richmond, Mo.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what another woman says:—

Jonesboro, Texas. — "I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for myself and daughter, and consider it unequalled for all female diseases. I would not be without it for anything. I wish every mother in America could be persuaded to use it as there would be less suffering among our sex then. I am always glad to speak a word of praise for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and you are at liberty to use this testimonial." — Mrs. James T. Lawrence, Jonesboro, Texas.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice—it is free and always helpful.

Hard Time Getting Sleep. A terrible denunciation of New York hotels has been made by a traveler, by name Oswald Flannagan, owner of a bird store in Keokuk, Ia. Flannagan complains bitterly because he could get no rest. This was not because he frequented Broadway, rather through the short-sightedness of the hotel men in failing to furnish beds for tall men. Flannagan, it may be remarked, is more than six feet in height, most of which is legs.

"Proprietors who take money from tall travelers should be prepared to accommodate them properly," quoth Flannagan to one hotel clerk. "All the beds I tried average about five feet, and that left a lot of me hanging over. I put my feet through the brass rungs, and every time I got to sleep I dreamed I was sitting down."

"You're supposed to curl up in a New York bed," suggested the clerk. "Space is very valuable in this city."

Reversed the Proposition Robert Wickliffe Woolley, the writer, found it necessary not long ago to take a trip west. On the dining car of the train he saw that he had in his pocket 10 cents in change, his smallest bank note being one for $50. He handed this to the porter, who went to the end of the car for a conference with the conductor. "I'm very sorry about this," said the conductor, standing in front of Woolley and toying with the big bill. "but we haven't the change for $50. We'll just take your address and send you the change."

Woolley calmly reached over and took possession of the banknote. "You've got nothing on me," he said. "I'll take the address of the railroad and send the price of the meal."

OBITUARY.

Samuel Collin Bennett, died of chronic diarrhea at his home in Fredonia, Ky., Feb. 20th, 1911, in the sixty-fifth year of his age. He lived and died in a few miles of the place of his birth and here he spent his whole life except some a few months during the war. So the writer feels in penning these few words he is not introducing a stranger to the public for few men in all the country was better known.

It was known too, by all, that in him were centered many traits of character that are essential to noblest manhood. He was thoroughly sincere and perfectly frank. He was positive in character, always taking his stand for or against a measure, but always standing, as he believed, on the right side.

He was a plain honest man, large hearted, given to hospitality, his house was always opened and rare was the time when it was not full. He loved his kin and kind. What he possessed was shared freely with them. His friends were many and to them he was faithful and true. Many a tired and discouraged minister of the Baptist church found his home a haven of rest and not a few of them retained vivid recollections of his liberality.

He was truly a success in life, his business ability was of a high order and his courage was of that kind which never shrinks. Few men indeed could take the farm where he raised his family and make the success he did. Then in the evening of his life when he could no longer cultivate his land, he sold out and entered the mercantile field, where his trade grew and stock enlarged until the last hours of his life. In his strong young manhood, he professed religion and united with Caldwell Spring church, and after a few years was elected one of their deacons in which position to the close of his life he "adorned the doctrines of Christ his Savior."

In his twenty-fourth year, he was united in marriage to Miss Bettie Boaz. To this union there was born three children, one of which died in infancy, two remain, W. T. Bennett, of Louisiana, and Ira C. Bennett, of Fredonia, Ky.

When at last informed by his physician that he could not live much longer, he went to making preparation, "to set his house in order." This he did with the same care, from a business standpoint that had characterized him in all his business relations. After he was done he said to friends, "I am now ready to go, ready to stay, the Lord's will be done."

As the last night he lived drew on, he was perfectly conscious it was his last night, he said to his family, "I won't take any more medicine, it might keep me a few hours with you all but you know how I suffer, let me go, then he thought of his little grand son, who was to him as dear as his own life. "Put him carefully to bed don't let him know what transpires here tonight, he will know all in the morning."

Then with perfect unflinching trust he resigned himself into his Father's hand, feeling that all was well. Just as the clock struck two that night like a tired child he sank to rest with fair visions of the beyond.

He is now forever free from the sorrow of earth. He has indeed triumphed, and to those who stand on this side of the brink and look and long and weep, I would mention the mercy seat.

J. S. HENRY.

On the account of not being prepared to take care of the large amount of eggs that I am now getting from my poultry which is about twelve hundred to fifteen hundred eggs monthly, and I am only prepared to take care of five hundred every twenty one days, in my incubators, so, I concluded to offer these eggs from High Class Birds, to parties near home rather than to advertise them in papers out of my own State at a remarkably low price of seventy-five cents per setting of fifteen, delivered at the following places in Crittenden and Livingston counties.

MARION, TOLU, SHERIDAN, SHADY GROVE, SALEM, CARRSVILLE, SMITHLAND, PINKNEYVILLE, LOLA AND HAMPTON.

The above price is hardly one half of what these eggs would cost you should you purchase them from poultry people in other states who have the full blood, and if I was prepared to take care of them all, not a penny less than one dollar and twenty-five cents would buy them. I would be pleased to have any one call and investigate my stock, if they so desire to see for themselves whether I have what I claim in this line or not. Write or Call.

AUSTRIAN HEIR IN A RAGE.

Denial of Precedence For Morganatic Wife Causes Furor.

A royal row is reported from Vienna between the venerable Emperor Francis Joseph and his son and heir, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, which, it is predicted, will cause great trouble in the court of Austria before it is adjusted.

The cause of the trouble is the archduke's morganatic wife, Duchess Sophie of Hohenberg, and her claims to precedence. As a result of the affair the archduke and his wife absented themselves from the first court ball of the season. It is known that the archduke had a stormy interview with his father the morning of the ball, demanding that his wife be accorded precedence over all the archduchesses. This was peremptorily refused, and the heir to the throne left in a fury and at home found his wife putting the finishing touches to her court gown. The news caused tears, of course.

Cavanagh. Forest Ranger

CHAPTER VII.
TWO ON THE VERANDA.

REDFIELD met his young man in dinner coat, looking extremely urban, and presented his "friend and neighbor, Mr. Enderby."

Enderby turned out to be the owner of the voice with the English accent which Lee Virginia had heard in the hall, but he was very nice, and a moment later Mrs. Redfield entered with Mrs. Enderby, a large lady with a smiling face. Then a voice she knew spoke from behind her: "I don't need a presentation, Miss Wetherford and I have already met."

She turned to meet Ross Cavanagh, the young ranger.

"How did you get here?" she asked in wonder.

"I rode across the hills. It's not far."

He, too, was in evening dress, and as she stared at him in surprise he laughingly protested. "Please don't scrutinize this coat too closely. It's the only one I've owned for ten years, and this is the only house in which I'd dare to wear it."

One of the guests was State Senator Bridges, a farmerlike elderly man wearing a badly fitting serge suit. He was markedly western. So was his wife, who looked rather uneasy and hot.

Virginia and Ross, being the only young folk at the table, were seated together, and Enderby remarked privately, "Ross, you're in luck."

"I know I am," he replied heartily.

Mrs. as Redfield had said, highly susceptible, made so by his solitary life in the mountains, and to be seated close beside this maid of the valley stirred his blood to the danger point. It was only by an effort of the will that he kept in touch with the conversation.

"I hadn't the least thought of seeing you here," said Virginia. "How did you happen to come?"

Redfield telephoned me at the mill, and I came at once. I haven't been here since May, and I just thought I'd take a half day off. Luckily my understudy was with me. I left him 'on the job.'"

He did not tell her that she was the principal reason for this sudden descent upon Elk Lodge, and no one but Redfield knew the killing ride he had taken in order to be in at the beginning of the dinner. The girl's face and voice, especially her voice, had been with him night and day as he went about his solitary duties. Her life problem had come to fill his mind to a disturbing degree, and he was eager to know more of her and of her struggle against the vice and vulgarity of the Forks.

"How is your mother?" he asked a few minutes later.

"Not at all well. Mr. Redfield is to take the doctor back with us tomorrow." The ecstasy died out of her face, and the flexible lips drooped with troubled musing. "I am afraid she suffers more than she will admit."

"She needs a rest and change. She should get away from her seat at that cash register and return to the open air. A touch of camp life would help her. She sticks too close to her work."

"I know she does, but she won't let me relieve her, even for an hour. It isn't because she doesn't trust me; she says it's because she doesn't want me sitting there—so publicly. She doesn't oppose my housekeeping any more."

"You certainly have made the old hotel into a place of miraculous neatness."

She flushed with pleasure. "I have done something, but not as I'd like to do. I really think if mother wishes to sell she could do so now to much better advantage."

"I've no doubt of it. Really, I'm not being funny, Miss Wetherford, when I say you've done something heroic. It's no easy thing to go into a place like that and make it habitable. It shows immense courage and self reliance on your part. It's precisely the kind of work this whole country needs."

His praise, sincere and generous, repaid her for all she had gone through. It was a great pleasure to hear her small self praised for courage and self reliance by one whose daily work was heroic. All things conspired to make a conquest of her heart, for the ranger bore himself with grace and dealt with his silver deftly. His face, seen from the side, was older and sterner than she had thought it, but it was very attractive in line.

Redfield appealed to the ranger. "Ross, you're all sorts of a reactionary. What do you say to this? Senator Bridges is opposed to all federal interference with state forests and state game."

The forester's eyes lit up. "But are these state forests and state game? What makes them so? They are lands which the whole people purchased and which the whole people defended."

"Heah, heah!" cheered Enderby.

Bridges bristled with anger and went off into a long harangue on state rights and the dangers of centralization, to which Enderby replied: "Bosh! The whole trouble with your bally government is its lack of cohesion. If I had my way I'd wipe out the senate. You're such blooming asses over here. You don't know enough to keep a really big man in your presidential chair."

This fussing about every four years is plain rot. Here's Roosevelt gets in the midst of a lot of the finest kind of reforms, you know, and directly you go and turn him out. Then if you get a bad man you've to wait four years till you can fetch him a whack. Why not arrange it so you can pitch your president out the minute he goes wrong? I say your old rag of a constitution is a ball and chain on your national leg. England is immeasurably better off so far as that goes."

Ross turned to Virginia, leaving the political discussion to go on over his head. "I was back in the old island a couple of years ago, and you've no idea how small it seemed to me. It surely is a 'right little, tight little island.' I couldn't help wondering whether the men in parliament were as important as they seemed to think they were and whether England is not really an empty shell of empire, a memory of what it once was. I couldn't settle down there some way. I was homesick for the mountains in a month. But what scared me most was the pauper population of the old place—one in every thirty-seven must be helped. I came back to the States gladly. 'I guess I'm an American,' I said to my sisters."

To Lee Virginia the talk of "the curse of democracy" and "the decay of empire" was unexciting, but when Cavanagh told of the sheepmen's advance across the dead line on Deer creek and of the threats of the cattle owners she was better able to follow the discussion. Bridges was heartily on the side of law and order, for he wished to boom the state (being a heavy owner in a town site), but he objected to Redfield's ideas of "botTLing up the resources of the state."

"But we're not," retorted Redfield; "we're merely defending them against those who would monopolize them. We believe in their fullest use, but we see no reason for giving away the resources when the country needs the revenue."

Mrs. Redfield rose as soon as the coffee came on. "You gentlemen seem bent upon discussing matters of no interest to us," she said, "so we'll leave you to fight it out alone. I'm sure you'll all agree with Hugh in the end. Like General Grant, he's a very obstinate man."

No sooner were they seated in the big living room than Mrs. Enderby began to relate comical stories of her household. Her cats had fits and ran up the wall. Her dogs were forever getting quilled by reason of foolish attacks upon porcupines, or else they came home so reminiscent of skunks that they all but smothered the cook. "Invariably they return from encounters of this kind just as we are sitting at dinner," she explained. "Furthermore, Enderby's ditches are habitually getting clogged and overflowing the lawn and filling the cellar, and he stands in terror of his cowboys. When I think of all these interruptions and distractions England's order and routine seem heavenly. But Charley finds all this amusing, more's the pity, and leaves me to set things in order. Most ludicrous of all to me is his habitual claim that the ranch is paying. I tell him there's an error in his bookkeeping somewhere, but he assures me that his receipts exceeded his expenditures last year, which is quite too incredible. You've no idea how high wages are and how little we raise."

"Oh, yes, I have," laughed Mrs. Redfield. "And my cat had a fit too. Hugh says it's the high altitude. I tell him it's melancholia."

Cavanagh showed himself. "I hear so much laughter I'm coming in. We're all so insufferably political out here, and, besides, I came to see the ladies, and I can stay only a few minutes longer."

"You're not going back tonight?" exclaimed his hostess.

"I must be on my own precinct by daylight," he replied. "The supervisor has an eye on me."

Mrs. Redfield explained to Lee Virginia, "He rode fifty miles over the mountains."

"Thirty," corrected Ross. "But what does that matter when I'm in the company of such charming ladies?" he added gallantly.

"And now he's going to ride all the way back tonight."

"Think of that!" gasped Mrs. Enderby. "And no moon!"

"How can you find your way?" asked Mrs. Bridges, to whom this was a mortally dangerous journey.

"Oh, it's quite simple! If you don't bump against a tree or fall into the creek you may be quite sure you're on the trail," laughed Ross.

Mrs. Redfield knew the true reason for his coming and was not at all pleased, "for with all Lee's personal charm," she said to her husband, "she is socially beneath Ross Cavanagh even in a state where social barriers are few."

"Come out on the veranda," suggested Cavanagh, "and I'll show you the hills I must climb."

Lee accepted innocently, but as the young people left the room Mrs. Enderby looked at her hostess with significant glance. "There's the lady Ross rode down to meet. Who is she?"

"Her mother is that dreadful old creature that keeps the Wetherford hotel in Roaring Fork."

"No!" exclaimed Mrs. Enderby.

"Yes; Lee Virginia is Lize Wetherford's daughter."

"But the girl is charming."

"I cannot understand it. Hugh came home a week or so ago full of her praise"—And at this point her voice dropped lower, and the other drew closer.

GO TO THE RESCUE

Don't Wait Till It's Too Late—Follow The Example of a Marion Citizen.

Rescue the aching back.

If it keeps on aching, trouble comes. Backache is kidney ache.

If you neglect the kidneys' warning. Look out for urinary trouble—dropsy.

This Marion citizen will show you how to go to the rescue.

J. O. Tabor, Marion, Ky., says: "I was afflicted with kidney trouble for about six years. The pains in my back were severe at times and when I was stooping or lifting, sharp twinges passed through my loins. My back always ached more intensely at night and in the morning I felt very lame. I tired easily, was languid and nervous and had headaches. The kidney secretions also passed too frequently and caused me annoyance. I took the contents of one and a half boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Haynes & Taylor's drug store and they rid me of every symptom of my trouble. I am now in good health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Some men seem to think they have nothing to do in this life but to sit idly by and let some one else do their part of the work for them. But the bible says that every man shall give an account of himself to God. And we fear that many will not be able to render much account for the way they have discharged their duty toward the church building here. Many have done nothing, others have not worked enough to get weary. But the promise is to the faithful. And so our church is moving on just the same.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and regularly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and waters of various kinds, and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women and children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medication for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble and families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Culler's of 225 N. Notre Dame street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its grand value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowel trouble absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

We saw in the Press some time ago, something about the dog tax and what had been paid out for the sheep that had been killed, supposed by the dogs. Now we are in favor of the dog tax but the poorest people in the county pay this tax and get no benefit of it. Now let's get this tax changed and put it on the road, where the poor people will get some benefit of it and we will have better roads. The man that owns the sheep is able to lose the sheep as any other stock. If a dog kills our hogs we get nothing for them, so let's change it, the road needs it.

Creole City Notifies Bernhardt She Cannot Play "La Samaritaine."

New Orleans, March 21.—Madame Sarah Bernhardt, who opens an engagement here, will not be permitted to present "La Samaritaine" in New Orleans. After hearing protests from the Catholic Societies the Mayor issued an order instructing the Police to prevent the presentation of the play.
The city attorney, in an opinion given to the Mayor, described "La Samaritaine" as "absolutely shocking to the moral and religious sense of a Christian community."

Jury Commissioners Appointed.

Judge Gordon appointed Chas. W. Fox, Frances; R. E. Flanary, Marion; and Richard Bebout, Sheridan; as jury commissioners but as the latter gentleman was sick, Frank I. Travis, of Tribune, was chosen. These gentlemen select the jury for the June term and are as representative citizens as the county contains. Mr. Fox is prominent in F. E. and C. U., matters, Mr. Flanary, a life long Democrat and Mr. Travis a true-blue Republican so that it would seem that no one could complain of favoritism in the selection of our jury commissioners.
